Report of Awareness program on COVID-19: Hygiene and Sanitization

As per the directions of regional NSS organizers, the NSS Unit-I of this institute has organized awareness program on COVID-19 (Omicron): Hygiene and Sanitization as a special camp on 08th and 10th Jan 2022 at Kondrupadu and ObulanaiduPalem Villages respectively.

Our NSS volunteers actively participated in oral campaign using mic to create awareness among village people on Hygiene and Sanitization importance in Omicron transmission control. Our students gave necessary suggestions for the people to follow proper diet, medication to lead a healthy and quality life. We demonstrated different methods of sanitization such as Hand wash using soap; alcohol based sanitizers and various dispensers and significance.

The event was conducted with special concern at old age homes in both villages. At old age homes, we distributed fresh fruits, masks and sanitizers to the elder people. All the residents of old age home were screened for Blood Pressure and Blood glucose levels. We found some issues with medication usage and frequent monitoring of Blood sugar, Blood Pressure etc. We recommended some elders to go for medical supervision for medication and dose adjustment.

All the students along with staff were involved in campaigning program at both the villages. They distributed fruits to the elder people and explained well about the precautions to be followed for prevention of Covid-19, importance of hygiene and sanitization.

Five-day workshop on “A Special course on Human Values and Professional Ethics”

02nd to 06th march 2022

Training and Placement cell of Chebrolu Hanumaiah Institute of Pharmaceutical Sciences have organized a five day work shop on “A Special Course on Human Values and Professional Ethics” at CHIPS during 02/03/2022 to 06/03/2022. at Chebrolu Hanumaiah Institute of Pharmaceutical Sciences, Guntur during 2nd to 6th March -2022. Especially in the past few years, where the learning and workplace environments have changed, students have to be more dynamic with their decisions in education, work and career-building. At this point, it all comes down to a student’s awareness of their strengths and weaknesses, their attempts to improve themselves – all while being a functional member of the society. The five-day work shop was mainly aimed to train the Pharm. D and B. Pharmacy students of CHIPS, Guntur. During this work shop Mrs. I Madhavi, Mentor, Hyderabad was the resource person. During this training programme Mrs. I Madhavi trained students on positive thinking, leadership and body language, dealing with stage fright and performance anxiety, time management, goal setting, working in a team and negotiation, seeking different sources to learn and create, healthy respect towards codes of ethics, social responsibility. After the work shop, the test was also conducted to know the level of understanding by the delegates and Students were encouraged to split into focus groups to work out activities, dynamically participate in group events and recognize and overcome their limitations. These takeaways will help them participate fearlessly in their own life, work and career. Almost all the participants have performed well and the feedback was excellent. During the valedictory function Dr. S. Vidyadhara, Chainman, IPA Education Division and Principal, CHIPS and Mrs. I Madhavi, Programme Mentor were present and addressed on the occasion and distributed the certificates to the participants.
